Hello Everyone,

Although we had done a fair amount of homework on Westside 8th Grade Middle School Teacher, Elizabeth Meyers, someone recently brought to our attention very disturbing posts written by the Westside teacher. If anyone reading this does not believe them to be extremely disturbing, please be the first to help us see it differently....but frankly, these posts by Elizabeth Meyers are indisputable.

Obviously, we will be reporting these to the authorities as they contain pedophilic commentary centered around Liz Meyers' infatuations of young students such as "black people with visible underwear," and "overly developed preteens". These online confessions written by Elizabeth Meyers are disgusting and sickening. In her online confessions Meyers states graphic and dangerous verbiage concerning her pedophile desires. This school teacher, Elizabeth Meyers, has no right to be around children and those people who disagree should come forth and explain to us a family that has already been abused by her, how we are wrong.

In one instance, a previous student, a boy, is included in Meyers' desire to return to Virginia, seek the boy out and reunite with him. We are also having the police notify his parents of this.

In previous said public online entry, Meyers states, "she likes to be asked tough questions in front of many people..." yet she hides when we asked her to answer questions from 2+ years ago and again over just 2 months ago. We invited Meyers and her lawyers - even the rest of the school staff for a formal sit down to get answers but they chose to hide. This is another example of Meyers' and Westside's lack of honesty and integrity.

Forthright they are not! It should be understood that these "educators" are your children's school's leadership, right in front of you. These "educators" we have called out by name have no respect for the students or the families or shame.

Warning, again, these comments are pedophilic in nature and right out creepy! Certainly if this was a male teacher he would be charged before anyone even finishes this email, but here in this teacher will be held accountable and the authorities will do what they are here to do.

We are providing photographic evidence in this email to prove to you that she has consistently violated her Nebraska Department of Education Code of Ethics in many areas.

What we found is so unconscionable, so amoral, but this did not surprise us as after all this teacher is extremely reckless and dangerous. These are Meyers' own posts, shared posts and commented posts. We have not altered them any of them in any way. They are direct screenshots of teacher, Elizabeth Meyers' own posts from her own social media.

WARNING!

Keep in mind that Meyers' is still as of today allowed teaching children and is unsupervised, unfettered in her political rants and now is exposed of her pedophile posts!

Please feel free to forward this email (with the following attachments) to the authorities and other vulnerable and unknowing families with students that attend Westside Middle School. Email the authorities the dismay you have for someone you trust to leave your child with everyday. Those who should hear from you are Sara Hulac, attorney for the Department of Education and other Department of Education leaders.

Obviously, her online posts and actions are unacceptable, and we believe they speak for themselves.

Thank you

As an educator in a digital age, it is becoming harder and harder to justify the notion of police as protectors every day.

Two years ago, one of my students - a charming, awkward, and a bit excessively good looking kid named Anthony cornered me at my desk and,

stumbling and humbling his way through it, asked me stumbling and bumping his way through it, asked me why I wasn't married. He said that I was unusual - not in a bad way, but that there was something about me that was different. Like I didn't need a man. Didn't I want children? Didn't I want to get married?

And yes. Of course I do.

Looking back at my life so far, there were paths I travelled that could have included marriage. But they weren't right at the time. I chose me over that particular brand of 'we'. There were so many missteps along the way. Things that I probably should have and could have done differently. But I don't believe in regret. I did what I thought was best at the time. That's that.

I remember telling Anthony that I wanted to be sure. That I wanted to make sure I didn't make a bad choice. That my happiness was important to me. And that I wanted to have children who could have a happy life as well. I'm not sure Anthony really understood my answer. To be fair, I'm still not exactly sure I understand the big picture of what he was asking.

Anthony is one of my most favorite students I have ever had. Not because he was my best student. He was not. Eloquent, he was not. But ballsy? You be  Here was a kid who after just a few months of

Anthony is one of my most favorite students I have ever had. Not because he was my best student. He was not. Eloquent, he was not. But ballsy? You bet. Here was a kid who after just a few months of knowing me, looked me straight in the face and asked a most personal question. In front of the entire class. Not because he was trying to be disrespectful, or intrusive, but because he was interested. In the course of a few moments - awkward and unexpected though they were - Anthony cut me to the quick and called me out on something important. And I have the utmost respect for him for that. Anthony is someone I miss every single day. He's one of a select few kids I want to go back to Virginia to visit. I want to see who he grows up to be. I'd love to have a kid who turns out just like him. Even at his worst, most awkward, most fumbling and bumbling.

Today at lunch, I watched a family of 6 - two parents and four very young children - get their seats at a restaurant. One of the children was screaming. The dad tried to appease her. The mom, was not pleased with his efforts or her screaming. When another child spoke, the mother stated - loudly and with such scorn in her voice, that the kid was "just like your father. Just another worthless liar." The boy was maybe 5. The father was right there. Despite the initial horror, more than anything else, in that moment I felt so very thankful. Thankful that I didn't grow up in a family like that. That I have people around me who would NEVER speak to each other, their spouses, or their children in that way.

But surprisingly - or perhaps not so surprisingly - it made me want nothing more than to transport myself back to Virginia and back to Anthony. I'm so thankful for him. For being someone in my life - if only for a brief time, who can remind me that it's ok to be a bit different for the sake of my own happiness. Who reminds me every single time I think of him why I am a teacher, and why, despite all the ugliness and contempt and bitterness out in the world, I do still want to get married. Why I do still want kids. I want the kids - students and my own - who ask the questions all around me. Who put me on the spot and ask the tough questions - especially when others are watching. Who maybe stumble on the words and who sometimes don't make any flipping sense. But who care enough to raise their voice. Who care enough to climb on a lap and tell a story from their day. Who care enough to remember that I am a person with very real wants and needs and desires. Who care enough to show that they are confused or concerned. Who want me to be happy. Even if I am single. And in my thirties. And perhaps a bit feistier than is altogether helpful or necessary.

For Anthony, I am so very grateful.

Dear news machine: vilification does not an impartial sharer of news make. Nor does seeking the most inarticulate, poor example of a student on the planet provide an accurate assessment of the education provided at any one institution. Back up, ass clown. Get off our lawn.
